

Puppy Dog Kindergarten January News Notes

Our Kindergarten class returned to the States to focus on the northeast region. As we discussed one state a day, we also studied the arrival of the first colonists and how the colonies grew. We read a historical fiction novel set in 1714 about the life of a young colonist growing up in Williamsburg, Virginia. When we discussed the state of Massachusetts we looked at the famous event that happened on the night of December 16, 1773 in Boston harbor. The stories behind, taxation without representation, the drafting of the Declaration of Independence, and General Washington's famous crossing of the Delaware River held everyone attention as we discovered our nations beginnings.

We tried our hand at Pennsylvania tin punching and concluded the unit with a tea party.
